AMER0101	Advanced Studies in American Literature	4	lecture	English	exam	Dr. Gabriella VÖÖ voo.gabriella@pte.hu	The theme of the course is American modernist poetry. It covers the poetic output of the first part of the twentieth century, concentrating on T. S. Eliot, Ezra Pound, Wallace Stevens, Hart Crane, Marianne Moore, Elizabeth Bishop, and Derek Walcott.	MA	Department of English Literatures and Cultures
AMER0102	Aspects of US Culture and Society	4	lecture	English	two class papers and one short class presentation	Dr. Mónika FODOR fodor.monika@pte.hu	This American Studies course identifies and investigates elements of United States society from the aspects of its contemporary social and cultural history, including America's dominant popular cultures. It will concentrate on the late 20th/early 21st, post World War II era, though also with focused reference to the origins of the United States, in order to understand and define American identity. Readings will be assigned from three primary textbooks, along with articles made available, relevant to specific, weekly themes of the course.	MA	Department of English Literatures and Cultures
AMER0128	Theory and Practice of American Studies	4	seminar	English	presentation, essay	Dr. Mónika FODOR fodor.monika@pte.hu	The aim of the course is to survey major American themes through the approaches offered by American studies as a way of mastering key tenets of the discipline. The course will ask students to read and view all assigned materials, primary and secondary, as well as to acquaint themselves with at least four of the suggested pieces, whether written or visual. Each student is to undertake at least one presentation of a topic of choice distributed in the first class, to participate in one individual consultation offered when tutor is on official leave, and to either submit a 2000-word paper to be discussed in a session, or to participate in an oral exam to be held in the exam period. Attendance is required as by university regulations, and participation in class counts towards one's grade.	MA	Department of English Literatures and Cultures
AMER0129	American Literature & Popular Culture 1	5	seminar	English	mid-term and the end-term test	Dr. Norbert GYURIS gyuris.norbert@pte.hu	The course aims at giving a more detailed picture of popular culture and its connection to film based on a variety of areas of popular North American literature. The goal of the course is to facilitate the discussion of these topics via the interpretation of the assigned readings. The course includes the analysis and interpretation of cultural aspects of literary works, films, trends, genres and the related social phenomena. The course promotes critical thinking in both writing and speech.	MA	Department of English Literatures and Cultures
AMER0132	Literature and Identity 2	5	seminar	English	class contribution, seminar paper	Dr. Gabriella VÖÖ voo.gabriella@pte.hu	The course explores literary works focusing on the cultures, identities, and experiences of selected ethnic groups within U.S. society. Students will employ close reading techniques to develop insights into rich, diverse perspectives and characteristic narratives. Moreover, findings from personal reading will be complemented by theoretical and conceptual frameworks of ethnicity and ethnic identification to challenge traditional notions of aesthetics. Thus, the theory and practice of the class will guide explorations of cultural authenticity, trauma, and identity.	MA	Department of English Literatures and Cultures

AMER0135	Classic Literary Criticism	5	seminar	English	presentation & response essay	Dr. László SÁRI sari.laszlo@pte.hu	The course is aimed at surveying the development of American literary criticism from the 1930 to the present as one of the formative institutions of American literature. The seminar is designed as a reading seminar focusing on key theoretical texts as well as their historical embeddedness in the institution of criticism whether in or outside academia. Accordingly, those taking the course are required to read seminal works in the history of American literary and cultural criticism as well as chapters from the textbook, discuss them in class, and to present on some of the theoretical issues as encountered in the primary texts written in the field of literary studies for their presentation.	MA	Department of English Literatures and Cultures
AMER0136	New Media & Literature	6	seminar	English	presentation & seminar paper	Dr. László SÁRI sari.laszlo@pte.hu	The course aims at giving a more detailed picture of the relationship of New Media and literary works. The structure, operating mechanism and the cultural impact of New Media will be discussed through the interpretation of literary pieces and their connection to New Media in general. The goal of the course is to facilitate the discussion of these topics via the interpretation of the assigned readings. The course includes the analysis and interpretation of cultural aspects of literary works, trends, genres related to New Media. The course promotes critical thinking in both writing and speech.	MA	Department of English Literatures and Cultures
AMER0137	American Political Institutions	4	lecture	English	exam	Dr. Mónika FODOR fodor.monika@pte.hu	The lecture is an introduction to the American political system and laws. It is based on the lecture US Politics and Culture and its theoretical and methodological considerations. At a practical level, the course examines the concepts, structure, forms of government, institutional and organizational units, organization and especially constitutional foundations of American political institutions. The aim of the course is to acquire a sensitive, critical thinking and analytical approach to American political issues, as well as the ability to debate, as well as to put the examined issues arising in contemporary American politics into a historical perspective through source analysis. Students are expected to stay up-to-date on current American political events by regularly reading at least one online news source (see media chart for list of most reliable news sources).	MA	Department of English Literatures and Cultures
ANGA0101	Introduction to Intercultural Communication	2	lecture	English	written exam	Dr. Judit DOMBI dombi.judit@pte.hu	The subject area gives a theoretical and practical introduction to intercultural communication. Discussed are the bases of culture and cultural differences, language differences and their relationship with culture, the characteristics of verbal and non-verbal communication, linguistic and pragmatic aspects of communication. It introduces students to the realization of everyday written and oral forms of intercultural communication, to the characteristics of verbal and non-verbal communication in the private and public spheres and in the workplace, to the use of communicational and compensational strategies, to the difficulties and characteristics of talking to foreigners, and the phenomena experienced during the use of a foreign language in intercultural situations.	BA	Department of English Linguistics
ANGA0110	The Language of Literary and Cultural Studies	2	seminar	English	written assignments	Dr. Zsuzsa CSIKAI csikai.zsuzsa@pte.hu	The aim of the course is to introduce first-year BA students to the major topics and terminology of research in literature and cultural studies through the study of various primary and secondary texts from different areas of the fields. The course intends to develop and improve students' vocabulary, reading comprehension, academic writing and oral presentation skills in the fields of literature and cultural studies.	BA	Department of English Literatures and Cultures
ANGA0115	English Phonetics and Phonology	3	lecture	English	written exam	Dr. Tamás FEKETE fekete.tamas@pte.hu	This lecture course provides a basic introduction to English phonetics and phonology. Theoretical issues of speech sound production, classification of consonants and vowels, phonotactics and major types of sound changes will be discussed in detail. A brief overview of contemporary changes in Received Pronunciation is also included in the topics. The course requires understanding and active use of the International Phonetic Alphabet, transcription exercises will be regularly provided.	BA	Department of English Linguistics

ANGA0116	English Morphology	3	lecture	English	written exam	Dr. Tamás FEKETE fekete.tamas@pte.hu	The aim of this lecture course is to provide a general survey of characteristics and structure of English words. Attention will be devoted to the discussion of inflectional and derivational morphology, as well as the different types of affixes and affixation processes. Methods of word-formation without affixation will also be discussed. In the second half of the course, the notions of productivity and lexicalization will be brought under scrutiny from a historical perspective. The course will conclude with a discussion of the relationship between social factors and morphology.	BA	Department of English Linguistics
ANGA0125	British Literature and Culture II Lecture	3	lecture	English	test	Dr. Gabriella HARTVIG hartvig.gabriella@pte.hu	The lecture course offers an overview of English literature and culture from the Victorian era to the 1970s. Őszi	igen	ESZBA0102	Introduction to Art History	3	lecture	English	oral exam/test	Dr. Adrienne GÁLOSI galosi.adrienne@pte.hu	The course provides introduction to the most important concepts, methods and fields of study in the field of art history: the emergence of art history as an autonomous discipline, its historicity, the concept of style, and stylistic periods, the interrelationship of artistic disciplines, and the connections among branches of arts; the concept of genre, source criticism, morphology, techniques of attribution, iconography, iconology. In many places it offers points of contact and insights into the history of culture and ideas, philosophy or literature. The course explores the field of art history as a discipline - its scope, structure, methods, the relationship between art history, and aesthetics, and presents art history as an interpretative discipline. Through famous interpretations of famous artworks, the art historical meaning of basic terms such as allegory, attribute, emblem, frame, personification, genre, symbol, type will be explored.	BA	Department of Aesthetics and Cultural Studies
Őszi	igen	ESZBA0208	Iconography/Iconology	4	lecture	English	oral exam/test	Dr. Adrienne GÁLOSI galosi.adrienne@pte.hu	Iconography and iconology are two very closely interwoven terms referring to the description and classification of artistic objects/images. Originally iconography referred to the study of subject matter in the visual arts while iconology referred not only to the interpretation of their meanings but also to the significance of that subject matter within the culture that produced it. Nowadays in art historical practice iconography and iconology feed into each other. The course examines the history and the development of the two related research methods, it focuses on systemising the process of iconology and iconography research by introducing Erwin Panofsky's three levels of analysis. By analysing masterpieces of the history of European art, students learn to understand the most important signs, symbols, personifications portrayed therein, they get an overview of Christian iconography and that of mythology. Őszi	igen	ESZBA0213	Art of the 19th Century – Modernism	4	seminar	English	oral exam/test	Balázs GÖRFÖL gorfol.balazs@pte.hu	The course will review the major artistic movements of European art from the end of the 18th century to the turn of the century, and the work of their most important representatives. In addition to national and regional specificities, emphasis will be placed on artistic experiments that go against the grain of tradition. Through the interpretation of individual works of art, the lectures will address the transformation of the social and institutional conditions of art, the emergence of new genres, forms, themes and the changing concept of art. The course will cover new artistic trends that developed alongside and after Classicism, as well as those that were in favour of and in opposition to Academic Art. In addition to the problems of painting in Realism and Romanticism, the relationship of art to science, the impact of the birth of photography, the move towards abstraction, the transformation of art institutions and the changing relationship between art and the public will be discussed.	BA	Department of Aesthetics and Cultural Studies
Őszi	igen	ESZBA0214	20th Century Art	4	seminar	English	oral exam/test	Dr. Adrienne GÁLOSI galosi.adrienne@pte.hu	The course will cover the arts from the 20th century to contemporary art. From the avant-garde to conceptualism, it surveys the most important artists and works of painting, sculpture and new genres, while also providing an overview of the most important issues and artists in the architecture of the century. The course introduces you to the trends in modern art and the socio-intellectual changes that have underpinned them, and seeks to illustrate the process by which art has become a problem in and for itself. Starting from late symbolism, the course looks at the often conflicting aspirations of the avant-garde movements and the most significant individual artistic achievements, and seeks to shed light on the process by which the traditional concept of art was challenged and the possibilities of its formal, material, media and thematic expression changed. In the context of post-1945 art, the main themes are performativity, the incorporation of consumer culture into art, institutional critique and the extreme conceptualisation of art. In addition to architecture, painting and sculpture, the course also seeks to discuss the most significant works of emerging new genres and new media.	BA	Department of Aesthetics and Cultural Studies
Őszi	igen	ESZBA0215	History of Hungarian Art	4	seminar	English	oral exam/test	Dr. Károly HORVÁTH horvath.karoly@pte.hu	The course provides a basic overview of the history of Hungarian art as it is embedded in the changing European historical stylistic periods, but also pays attention to the particular Middle-European and Hungarian tendencies. The course guides the students through the art history by focusing on the cultural sites of Pécs. Classes in museums, world heritage sites and galleries that contain artworks and architecture from the Roman Ages to the present day give students the chance to work with objects up-close, uncovering histories of 1500 years. The rich heritage of Pécs provides opportunities – from Early Christian cemetery through the cathedral from the Middle Ages and the Zsolnay ceramics of the Art Nouveau to Bauhaus architects – to follow art history up to the contemporary scene.	BA	Department of Aesthetics and Cultural Studies

Őszi	igen	FILMA0101	Introduction to Film Studies	4	lecture	English	oral exam/test	Dr. Tamás CSÖNGE csonge.tamas@pte.hu	The purpose of this course is to introduce students to the fundamental characteristics of film as an audiovisual medium and artform. It discusses the diverse forms of various professional discourses about film, including aspects of film history, film theory, and film criticism. The focus is on film as a form of cultural communication, therefore technical, aesthetic and contextual aspects are given equal importance in the curriculum. In addition to the analysis of the formal-textual elements of the medium (cinematography, editing, sound, mise-en-scène, acting), its rhetorical figures, genres, narrative modes, cognitive and visceral effects, emphasis is also placed on the ideological charge, social and cultural context of each work. By mastering subject knowledge, the basics of critical thinking and the academic language, students will be able to develop consistent and compelling film interpretations.	BA	Department of Film and Visual Studies
Őszi	igen	FILMA0107	Introduction to Film Analysis	5	lecture	English	oral exam/test	Dr. Csaba ANDRÁS andras.csaba@pte.hu	The aim of the film analysis subject group is to develop the interpretational competencies of students. The aim of the seminar is to familiarize the students with the conceptual apparatus used in film analysis, the presentation of a wide spectrum of interpretational methods, and the broadening of the students' interpretive perspectives. In presenting the methods of art analysis, special emphasis is placed on the formal and discursive peculiarities of film, the meaning-making role of the elements that constitute film language, the social / historical context of interpretive traditions, and the interpretive practices of other disciplines in contact with film studies. Film analyses during the seminar explore the cognitive and emotional mechanisms of the case studies, highlight the connection of the analyzed films to aesthetic canons, point out the way in which the philosophies, systems of ideas and ideologies present in the films prevail, and deepen our understanding of the creative process.	BA	Department of Film and Visual Studies
Őszi	igen	FILMA0108	Classical and Modern Film Theories	4	lecture	English	oral exam/test	Péter Miklós LICHTER lichter.peter@pte.hu	The course examines the ways in which cinema has been thought about, defined and studied. Students become acquainted with the most important basic concepts and debates in film aesthetics (film as language, the relationship between film and reality, montage, modernism / mass culture debate, the relationship between film history and style), various schools of film theory (film semiotics, psychoanalytic theories, seam theory, cognitive theories, cultural approaches) and the most important texts of theorists (Rudolf Arnheim, Jean Epstein, Sergei Eisenstein, Siegfried Kracauer, Béla Balázs, André Bazin, Walter Benjamin, Jean Mitry, Vsevolod Pudovkin, Christian Metz, Roland Barthes, Stephen Heath, Laura Mulvey, Noël Burch). Students will be able to place theoretical texts in a historical and cultural context and take a critical approach.	BA	Department of Film and Visual Studies
Őszi	igen	FILMA0109	Filmnarratology	4	seminar	English	oral exam/test	Dr. Tamás CSÖNGE csonge.tamas@pte.hu	The course introduces students to the basic concepts, methodology, current problems and debates of film narratology. The course examines the appearance of narrative elements and structures in cinematic form, and how the language- and text-centered categories of the auxiliary science of classical narrative theory (narration, story, point of view, space, time) can be applied in a film theoretical discourse, and what new analytical aspects and models are necessitated by medial, structural, and contextual differences. Students will become familiar with the major schools and approaches to narrative theory and will be able to recognize, systematize and interpret a variety of narrative techniques and to approach the relationship between film and narration in a problem-sensitive and nuanced way.	BA	Department of Film and Visual Studies
Őszi	igen	FILMA0110	Film History 1.	4	lecture	English	oral exam/test	Dr. Csaba ANDRÁS andras.csaba@pte.hu	Through the lectures students learn about the first thirty years of film history, from the development of film technology to the first years of the introduction of film sound. During the semester, the most important trends of the silent film era will be discussed: the period of "the cinema of attraction", the avant-garde traditions (dadaist, expressionist, surrealist, constructivist tendencies), the early mass cinema, the "city symphony" film form, the first propaganda films, and the main directions of film criticism and theory between the two world wars. Although the primary focus of the course is the European filmmaking and the avant-garde, students will also become familiar with the dominant, fictional filmmaking of the era, as well as the documentaries of the period. The aim of the course is to see these phenomena in the context and as a part of more general systems of cultural and social relations. By completing the course, students will be able to understand the historical system and context of the silent film era.	BA	Department of Film and Visual Studies
Őszi	igen	FILMA0115	Film History 3	4	lecture	English	oral exam/test	Dr. Tamás CSÖNGE csonge.tamas@pte.hu	The course introduces students to the third major period in film history from the 1950s to the 1970s, focusing on modern European art film emerging from the theoretical-conceptual idea of film authorship (auteur theory) and juxtaposing it with major developments in American cinema. Students will gain knowledge of the trends and peculiarities of cinematic modernism, its relationship to classical narrative, the main features of national new waves, and will be able to see the relationship of films of the era to previous formal and narrative conventions. The works of Alfred Hitchcock, Stanley Kubrick, Roman Polanski, Jean-Luc Godard, François Truffaut, Alain Resnais, Federico Fellini, Michelangelo Antonioni, Luis Buñuel, Ingmar Bergman and Andrei Tarkovsky are featured in the material. Őszi	igen	FILMA0117	Film Analysis 2	5	seminar	English	oral exam/test	Péter Miklós LICHTER lichter.peter@pte.hu	The aim of the film analysis subject group is to develop the interpretational competencies of students. The aim of the seminar is to familiarize the students with the conceptual apparatus used in film analysis, the presentation of a wide spectrum of interpretational methods, and the broadening of the students' interpretive perspectives. In presenting the methods of art analysis, special emphasis is placed on the formal and discursive peculiarities of film, the meaning-making role of the elements that constitute film language, the social / historical context of interpretive traditions, and the interpretive practices of other disciplines in contact with film studies. Film analyses during the seminar explore the cognitive and emotional mechanisms of the case studies, highlight the connection of the analyzed films to aesthetic canons, point out the way in which the philosophies, systems of ideas and ideologies present in the films prevail, and deepen our understanding of the creative process.	BA	Department of Film and Visual Studies

Besonderer Akzent wird dabei auf Textverständnis, textnahe Interpretation, Vorstellung der intertextuellen und medialen Bezüge und die Rezeptionsgeschichte der Werke gesetzt. Die Studierenden üben auch verschiedene Präsentationstechniken dadurch, dass sie über die einzelnen Themen Referate halten.	Teacher training	Institute of Germanic Studies
GERM0126	A német nyelv változatai / Varietäten der deutschen Sprache	2	seminar	German	Referat, Seminararbeit	Dr. Zsuzsanna GERNER, gerner.zsuzsanna@pte.hu	Im Rahmen des Seminars lernen die Studierenden die Varietäten der deutschen Gegenwartssprache sowie deren Gruppierung nach verschiedenen Kriterien kennen. Parallel zur Erarbeitung theoretischer Grundlagen, die auch sprachhistorische Aspekte berücksichtigt, bedienen wir uns in erster Linie der praktischen Textanalyse. Dabei werden wesentliche Variablen der nationalen (der deutschländischen, österreichischen und schweizerischen Standardvarietät) und der regionalen, sozialen, funktionalen Varietäten vorgestellt. Den Studenten sollen durch die Lehrveranstaltung die sprachstrukturellen und pragmatischen Eigenheiten des deutschen Sprachraums nähergebracht werden. Ebenfalls soll ein Bewusstsein für die Diversität der deutschen Sprache entwickelt werden. Neben der Klärung der Begriffe von Varietät, Variante, Plurizentrität usw., sollen Hör- und Lesebeispiele die Diversität als eine natürliche Erscheinung sichtbar machen und die Akzeptanz derselben erzielen. PONTA0115	Regional Studies	3	lecture	English	oral exam	Dr. Máté DEÁK deak.mate@pte.hu	With the change of the regime Hungary needed to face two challenges: creating thenew political, economic and social structures in the country found, and at thesame time, finding its place and role in a new international and securityenvironment. This situation led to the acceptance of the new priorities ofHungarian security and military policy. Today, the Hungarian national armyoperates within the framework of a new type of military alliance, and itbasically copes with the professional army-model, based on the principles ofvolunteering. The aim of the course is to introduce the security policy ofHungary in the last two decades, to examine the institutions involved withnational security policy (government, parliament, army), to examine theinstitutional framework of civil control above the army, the legal environment,the results and the failures in the field of army modernization. Theexamination of the security and military policies of the governments andparties since the change of the regime is also an essential part of the course. PONTA0122	Political Culture - International Cultural Relations	4	lecture	English	in-class team presentations, final test exam	Dr. Kata MURÁNYI muranyi.kata@pte.hu	The course provides a theoretical overview of political culture in CEECs, with an emphasis of the characteristics of political culture in Hungary. A 'triangular approach' (developed by the lecturer) will be used for a better understanding of the interconnected aspects (including also political socialization and political communication): the intention is to present the three 'legs' on which the context of investigation is based when political culture is discussed and different political cultures are compared. This 'triangular framework' will show the major notions and points of reference to help students comprehend the complexity of political culture. Also, international cultural relations will be discussed via institutions and policies, again the case study will be Hungary.	MA	Department of Political Science and International Studies
PONTA0201	The European Paradigm Since the Ancient Times until the Present Day	3	lecture	English	oral exam	Dr. Erich Zoltán BRETTER zoltan.bretter@gmail.com	The idea of Europe is a unified ideality in so far as we perceive it as an abstract entity. Therefore is very important to understand, that the idea of Europe is an empirical construct, an artefact, and its inner tensions are those that define it. Instead of having a reductive, simplifying, partisan approach, the student should seek a more sophisticated description of the idea	MA	Department of Political Science and International Studies
PONTA0204	The EU in International Affairs	3	lecture	English	formative assessment and exam	Dr. Zoltán VÖRÖS voros.zoltan@pte.hu	The precise and real nature of the European Union (EU) has long been a question in international affairs. It is difficult to understand, how to deal and cooperate with an actor, which is neither a traditional state nor an intergovernmental international organization. While the EU has significant decision-making authority in certain policy areas, it lacks influence in others. This mix of competencies in external relations can confuse non-members and strain relations among EU member states and the Union's supranational institutions. The course investigates the complexities of the EU's role and authority in international affairs and its relations with peripheries and other actors.
